Important Facts to Help Ensure that You Receive Full Payment for Your Work

1. Know your rights – You are entitled to the minimum wage ($7.25/hr). If you are employed as a farm worker, and you are being paid by the piece, you still must be paid at least $7.25 per hour. Even if you are fired or quit your job, you are still entitled to received wages for the work you did. Without your permission, your employer may not deduct anything except taxes from your paycheck.
2. Know your employer – You should always know the FULL name of your employer and your supervisor, the business address, and the telephone number. If you have to file a complaint you must know who hired you. Take time to find out this information, it could be very important to you.
3. Keep a time sheet – You should have a written record of the days and hours worked, your hourly rate of pay, and the address of the work site. Both you and your employer should sign this time sheet. If your employer does not provide you with a time sheet, ask for one or make one up. It is important to keep a time sheet even if your employer does not sign it or if you are uncomfortable asking your employer to sign it. A timesheet may be used as evidence if you have to go to court.

Contact the Legal Clinic with Wage Claims. You may also file with the magistrate's court to recover your unpaid wages. No attorney is necessary and the filing fees can be waived. If you are not paid for the work you've done or your employer made payroll deductions that are unreasonable or that reduce your rate of pay below minimum wage (other than taxes) without your permission, please contact the GA Law Center for the homeless immediately at 404/681-0680. If you have a migrant farm worker wage claim, contact the Georgia Legal Services Farm worker Advocacy Program toll free at 1-800-537-7496

EMPLOYMENT DISCRIMINATION ASSISTANCE

Programs that provide assistance for people who believe that they have been denied equal access to employment or that they have been treated unfairly as employees, i.e., that they were sexually harassed or denied equal pay for equal work, passed over for a promotion, denied training opportunities or fired on the basis of their age, gender, race or ethnic origin, nationality, religion, disability, sexual orientation or marital status. In Canada, sources of income, same-sex partner status, criminal convictions, political beliefs and family status may apply. Also included are programs that provide assistance for job applicants who feel they have been denied employment because of a military service obligation or help restore job seniority and pension rights which have been withheld from service personnel because of an absence from work due to a service obligation.
